MONTREAL, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1954

PRICE : TWO CENTS

Hark the Choral Angels Sing! Gifford Mitchell is shown as he directs a rehearsal of the Choral Society in preparation for the annual "Sing at Christmas" Concert.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO PRESENT ANNUAL CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The tenth annual "Sing at Christmas" concert will be presented by the Choral Society on Saturday, December 18 in the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium at 8:30 pm.

Mitchell Directs

The concert will be under the direction of Gifford Mitchell who is a McGill graduate, and the director of the Montreal Elgar Choir, director of Music for the Westmount School Board, and Associate Supervisor of Music for the Montreal Protestant School Board. Miss Doris Killam, also a graduate of McGill will accompany the Society for the sixth year.

As usual, the concert will be divided into two parts. The first half will tell the Christmas story in song, while the second half will illustrate the lighter and festive side of the Yuletide season.

Christmas Story

The first part will be introduced by The Angel And Shepherds, a French Noel, and O Little Town of Bethlehem. The annunciation will be told by Bach-Gounod's Ave Maria. The plainsong melody Veni Emmanuel will herald the birth. The climax of the story will be the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah.

Audience Participates

There will be narratives by students of 14 countries, and the audience will be asked to join with the choir in the singing of some of the more traditional Christmas carols.

The second half of the concert will feature the Gloucestershire Wassail, Merry Christmas To You, Jingle Bells, and others. The finale will be a cantata, Christmas at Grandmothers.

Tickets for the concert are on sale for one dollar at the Union Tuckshop and at the Graduate Society, or may be obtained from any member of the Choral Society.

TICKETS TO VENICE NOW AT ALL TIME LOW

The fare for two people to spend One Night in Venice has reached an all time low, it was announced today.

Tickets for this year's McGill Prom go on sale today at $3.00 per couple, a reduction of $.75 over last year. Booths will be set up in the Engineering and Arts Bldgs., and in the Union. Table reservations may be made with the purchase of a ticket.

Due to the surplus of Student Society funds, the SEC has decided to subsidize the dance to the tune of $.75 per couple. In addition, free soft drinks will be available.

As has been the custom, dress will be formal and the Prom will be cabaret style. Couples will dance to the music of Russ Meredith and his orchestra from 10 to 3 pm next Friday, December 3, in the gym.

Decorations will feature a silhouette of Venice on a mural 25 by 60 feet, the largest ever put up in the gym. Other murals will depict scenes of Venetian life. The Fountain of Youth, a Gondola, the Bridge of Sighs and Barber Poles

ARENA PRODUCTION HOLDS PREMIERE

The opening of Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler tonight will mark the sixth annual Arena Production by the Players' club. Tonight will also be the first time that the newly decorated Stewart Room will be used for an event of this kind.

An all student cast under the direction of Norma Springford will be performing in the distinguished Norwegian dramatist's classic of modern theatre. John Gassner, the noted New York critic, has called Hedda Gabler: "Ibsen's greatest work".

Helga von Eicken is featured in the title role, and like many of the cast will be her first appearance on an arena stage with its demand for great concentration. Previously she has played supporting parts with such companies as MRT and the Mountain Playhouse.

The remaining members of the cast include Neil Madden, Peter Engel, Hisham Nashabi, Gerda Rother, Yvonne Perrault, and Mary Burns; all have had stage experience on and off the campus.

The newly built Stewart Room on the second floor of the Union will afford better seating facilities with comfortable seats replacing the bleachers that were used in the past. The set has been designed by David Farley and executed by Dick Dibben with the assistance of Bob Bell. Tickets for the play will be on sale all this week both in the Union and in the Arts' Building as well as at the box office with a special student price of 75 cents.

EXHIBIT SPONSORED BY WUS

A sale of Indian and Greek handicrafts will be sponsored by W.U.S., the World University Service, starting December 6 in the Union.

W.U.S. grew out of the Student Service which organized in 1920 in response to the havoc brought on by the First World War.

Its objectives are to assist students and professors in need, to improve facilities within universities and colleges, and to encourage mutual service between members of colleges and universities throughout the world.

WUS has no specific members, no fees. It offers a means of coordinating the individual efforts of countless university persons in a common enterprise of university service. It is an international expression of the desire to rise above differences of race, religion and political persuasion.

The work of W.U.S. is financed by voluntary contributions and funds raised by the efforts of groups of students, professors and graduates.

Among other things, W.U.S. aids foreign students in Canada, it provides scholarships for refugee students, it promotes study tours and seminars.

McGill contributes to W.U.S. in part through Combined Charities and in part through the profits of the India Sale.

University Finances Face Major Crisis

Canadian universities are currently faced with several problems. Although at the present moment, there is a low ebb in the number of college graduates entering upon careers in business and industry, the expected wave of war babies which is anticipated to reach its peak in 1962, makes the financial picture seem all the more dim for the future.

If most of 134,188 war babies concerned do go to college, the present deficit will be enormously increased, unless federal aid is stepped up at the same time.

Concern for the situation was recently manifested by the National Conference of Canadian Universities, and a committee was formed to educate the public for the recognition of the need for more federal aid. However, the universities are still facing a major financial crisis in the form of scholarship programs. As a University of Toronto official put it, even with federal aid, they will still be struggling to make ends meet.

Architecture Display On View This Week

This week in the Architecture Building, the prize-winning student designs in the Pilkington Glass competition are on display. This competition is held annually on a national basis.

Most of the designs will concern larger schemes such as community centres, department stores, schools, etc. Of special interest to Montrealers are two projects, for which sites in the city have already been selected. One of these projects is to be an art centre, the other a shipping terminal.

CANDIDATES FOR SEC AND WOMEN'S UNION

Candidates for positions in the SEC and Women's Union who wish to have their photos, platforms and pensketches published in The Daily, please note the following rules:

1) Candidates for the SEC may use a total of 200 words for their combined pensketch and platform, and Women's Union candidates may use a total of 100 words for their pensketch. WARNING: All words over the word limit will be deleted whether or not this occurs in the middle of a sentence.

2) Entries must be signed by the candidate himself, and by not more than SIX of his supporters, with names legibly printed beside the signatures.

3) Photos should be glossy portraits of the candidate's head and shoulders. Snapshots will not produce good pictures.

4) Entries must be typewritten, on one side of the paper only.

5) Entries should be addressed to the Executive Editor, McGill Daily and be handed in to George Foster at the Union Tuckshop, no later than 5 pm, Wednesday, November 24.

ENTRIES RECEIVED AFTER THE DEADLINE WILL NOT BE PUBLISHED.

THE BETTER HALF

We are sick and tired of the male population of McGill and the world in general looking down on women, treating them as an inferior species, fit only for the task of propagating the race. They are not, and we think that it is about time that men faced this fact. Women were emancipated politically almost fifty years ago. Why cannot this happen in other fields such as business, and the professions?

Given an equal chance — and this includes taking into account that a woman has less bodily strength — and a little encouragement instead of the usual ridicule, a woman can do almost anything a man can, and can often do it better.

We have only to examine the ranks of statesmen to see what can be accomplished by women in a field in which they have been able to compete for some time. Consider Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, of the United States, who has been a leader in the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization, since the death of her husband. Consider Mme. Pandit Nehru, of India, who has been president of the UN General Assembly. Consider even our own Dr. Charlotte Whitton, mayor of Ottawa.

In other fields, too, women are beginning to make a name for themselves in competition with men. Consider Margaret Higgins, a war correspondent in Korea during the height of the battle; Lucille Ball, better known as an actress, but an extremely capable business woman.

Women are no longer content to be secretaries for great men; laboratory technicians instead of researchers; social reporters instead of war correspondents; employees instead of employers. Women want to direct affairs for a change and the educational facilities now available to them are helping them towards this goal.

What really interests us, though, is the fact that even at an institute of higher learning, a cosmopolitan university such as McGill, men will not accept that fact that women may be as capable as they, as intelligent, or as able to command.

How many organizations on campus have women as presidents? How many have constitutions forbidding a women to become president?

We do not believe that this is right. Women who are able to lead, who wish to lead, should have the chance to do so. We do not say that men should bow out of the picture — far from it. But we do feel that at least at university, women should have the opportunity that they will not get later from the outside world.

Letters to the Editor

Drivel from the Pewter Mug

Dear Sir:

When are you going to stop insulting the intelligence of your readers by printing the drivel prepared for you by J. F. MacLeod, Talbot Richards, etc., in that abortion which you entitle "The Pewter Mug?"

This blot upon your editorial pages not having appeared for several issues of The Daily, we had begun to hope that The Daily had at long last decided to stop being used as a vehicle for the objectionable opinions of these writers. If you haven't decided to stop doing so, it's high time you did!

It was shocking enough that you should lend your editorial pages to support alcoholism, isolationism in student affairs, and German war criminals — the subject of past excretions from "The Pewter Mug." Now the bottom of the sludge-barrel is being scraped, when members of the so-called "responsible student body" start inciting to riot.

We would agree with the writer that "a student riot is an unpleasant affair." It is, in fact, a disgraceful exhibition of childishness and disrespect for proper authority. The other "light-hearted escapades" that your writer encourages as a replacement of student riots are hardly less disgraceful. To single out the university as a place where one should find the requisite "unwillingness to be intimidated by authority or by convention" is a surprising and we hope unjustified slur against our centres of higher learning.

No, we don't want to go with you to fire a cannon, Mr. MacLeod. If we happen to be around while you are trying to perpetuate any such outrage, we shall call the police.

Wanted
One Milk Cooler

Dear Sir:

I wish, on behalf of the students who lunch in the Physical Sciences Centre common room, to bring to the attention of the proper authorities concerned, our desire to see a milk cooler installed in the P.S.C., preferably in the common room.

A Disgrace

Dear Sir:

What a disgrace it is to walk into the Union Cafeteria or Grill Room from 1 to 2 pm every day!

Here one may see the average civilized McGill student make an absolute savage of himself. Here one may see a congregation of eight people sitting a table for six, not for lack of room, but simply to raise their voices to a dull roar and to leave a pile of debris about a foot deep, composed of paper bags, sandwiches, cigarette butts, orange peels, and, of course, the ever-popular apple cores.

FROM THE PEWTER MUG

By Talbot Richards

Poor Joe McCarthy seems to have fallen on black days.

His enemies (i.e., people with brains) are literally dancing jigs of glee around the hole in the ground they have dug for his burial. So glad are the rejoicings over what we sincerely hope will be his total demise that we think it appropriate to sound a short lament for his passing, by way of injecting a more solemn note into the proceedings.

In a funeral manner

Please don't think that we of the Pewter Mug are not delicious with pleasure at the prospect of a McCarthy fadeout; we merely feel that a funeral should be conducted in a properly funeral manner.

What we want

Before launching into our gravesong, may we mention that although it sends shivers of ecstasy up our spine to watch McCarthy being berated in the Senate, and although it will send even more of them up our spine should he be officially censured, and although an eventual expulsion from the Senate would transport us to the sublime state, what we would really like to see would be his ignominious defeat in a Wisconsin state election?

Perhaps this is, however, a rupture too celestial to be even dreamed of.

The Senate of the United States, representing as it does the intellectual elite of that country (note to reader: this should be read with a slight sneering tone), can be depended upon to remove the excrecence of Joe McCarthy from its midst; but can the great horde of the electorate be counted on to do likewise?

Billy Graham of the Senate

We must remember that Joe is a damagogue, or "one who panders to the prejudices of the public;" by emotional bluster he "succeeds in misleading large numbers of the people;" he is a veritable Billy Graham of the Senate floor, operating on the theory that "you can't underestimate the intelligence of the American people."

In Canada Too

He have this sort of animal in Canada too, and we don't have to look far to find them.

Demagogues operate best in areas where the public is most prejudiced, most uneducated, and most open to being mulcted.

In the United States they flourish in a band across the southeast and up the midwest.

In Canada they also flourish in highly specific areas.

Incapable of analyzing

We find ourselves incapable of analyzing the provincial minds of the people who consistently vote for these specimens; but there they are, eagerly sopping up the utterances of power-politicians who favor race purity, religion, special favors for their electoral districts, and, in the case of McCarthy, wave red herrings about to distract the voters from the issues of the day, which are perhaps just a bit too grim to worry about anyway.

McCarthy's mass misleading of the voters possibly reached a new high (or low): he practically had his countrymen believing that the Communist menace was from home sources and not from Russia.

Can they see through him?

Maybe by now Wisconsin voters can see through him; we shall be charitable and suggest that they voted for him earlier only because he give them publicity, and bad publicity is better than no publicity.

Ten million fools

A campaign is underway to have enough Wisconites sign a petition to recall him; another campaign is underway to find ten million

"For a mild cigarette... Smoke a fresh cigarette!"

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

Call it luck, or call it skill, but whatever the verdict, the Western Mustangs will be one of the clubs on the field come Saturday when the Varsity Blues visit Little Memorial Stadium. The stake will be the Yates Trophy, and if you're a betting man, don't lay odds against the Metras machine.

The Mustangs have proved beyond a doubt that they are the greatest clutch team in Canadian college football. In the pre-season releases, reports of "Masterson's greatest since his coming to Canada," or that "Tindall's only lost three through graduation" may hog the headlines, but come the frosty days in November, and the Yates Cup is usually resting in its accustomed place — you guessed it, the office of John P. Metras. This has been the case in seven of the last nine years, and there aren't many experts who say that the Blues will stop Western from making it eight in ten.

As if this great ability to get his boys "up" for an important game isn't enough to scare the average Toronto fan, there is the mystifying jinx that Little Stadium itself holds over the Blues. Toronto has not won a game in London for 17 years.

An important factor in this encounter is the comparative condition of the teams — both physically and mentally. Physically the Mustangs suffered quite a few minor injuries in the Queen's game, not enough for Metras to call for his vice-president in charge of crying towels, but still this lack of rest will place the Mustangs at a disadvantage....

On the other hand the Blues will present a comparatively well-rested squad on Saturday. The Blues took a trip over the weekend out to Vancouver, and took enough time from their sight-seeing to nose out the UBC Thunderbirds, which the Coast executives had enough nerve to call a bowl game. It is difficult to see how this could be referred to as such, even though the Thunderbirds had a perfect record — they didn't win a game all year. Under the pretense of a bowl game, the Blues played it close to the vest, and won out 5-3.

Whether Bob Masterson thought he was being scouted by a Western alumni on the coast, or whether he didn't want to risk an injury to any of his high-priced stars, we don't know, but nevertheless the Blues were held touchdownless for the second time this year. However, unassuming Bob Masterson, in order to dispell any worries which might have arisen in the minds of his wealthy alumni who fact the bill for his football squad, said modestly after the game, "We could have won by a lot more if there was anything at stake."

Beneath the bravado statement, column forsees a trace of worry in the armour of bashful Bod. He thought his team was rolling, and they should have been able to pile up a nice lead on the Thunderbirds, even if they used their fourth string.

The psychological side favours the Mustangs. They are the Yankees of college football, and even after being outplayed for 59 minutes and 50 seconds of last week's game, they still managed to win. They always seem to be up for the bid one, and this Saturday will probably be no exception.

This Is A Woman's World; Pool Sharks Beware

by Ruth Roskies

The forthcoming Model Parliament has as its subject, Women's Rights in Canada. It's about time someone stood up for women's rights in the Union. Why aren't we allowed into the poolroom?

When the poolroom was upstairs, the situation was not quite so deplorable. The atmosphere was always smoky, and quite unappetizing. Besides, who would want to climb up and down the stairs? But now that the poolroom has been renovated, and is, in fact, quite respectable, women should be allowed to participate in this activity.

As a matter of fact, pool is more a woman's than a man's sport in the first place. The artistic fingers, the poise and balance that are part and parcel of playing pool, are in-born in women and quite unnatural to men. It would be so much more pleasant to see a graceful form drawing patterns on the green felt, than the bulk of same Samson.

Now that the Christmas season is approaching, all women should invade the poolroom and use the balls for Christmas tree decorations. The Pewter Mug was calling for some student action yesterday. Well ladies, let's show them some action!

Women, as we have been told often enough, have no useful function in this institution of learning. They may, therefore spend their time playing. But it is certainly not worthy of our engineers, doctors, dentists, or even future college professors.

COED BASKETBALL

The following are the results of the co-ed intramural basketball games played last night:

Phys. Ed. 3 defeated Phys. Ed. 2, 27-4, while Science defaulted their game against Physio.

The standing in the tournament remains the same with Physio leading in first place and Phys. Ed. following closely behind.

LAWYER DISCUSSES WOMEN'S RIGHTS IN QUEBEC

Mrs. W. Holmes, a well known Montreal lawyer, will speak at the Liberal Club's first open meeting on November 25 at 1 pm. Her subject will be "Women's Rights in the Province of Quebec."

Mrs. Holmes received her B.A. from Queens University in 1924. She graduated from the Law Faculty at McGill in 1948.

She established the law firm of Holmes and Gilchrist in 1951. This was the first woman's law firm in Canada.

Mrs. Holmes' interest in women's right in Quebec became keenly aroused when she was studying for her law degree at McGill. She has spoken before the women's Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Montreal Board of Trade and many other organizations on this subject.

She is President of the League of Women's Voters in Montreal. She is also on the Board of Directors for the Canadian Penal Institution and the Society for Protection of Women and Children.

INSIDE STORIES TO BE REVEALED BY FIG LEAF

Care to take a sneak peek behind the Fig Leaf?

The magazine's Editorial Board recognizes four varieties of articles to be found among the pages:

First of all, an expose on patterns of behavior found among prominent campus groups. It will be discovered what makes the Engineer different from the languishing ivy-leaguer, and how their tastes differ in clothes, liquor, and women.

Secondly, the inside story on the Union. Is it really as bad as they say? Or worse? Informed sources state that the disclosures of this feature have been endorsed by Good Housekeeping and the New Union Committee.

Another item deals with a new view of the Fraternity, written by a penetrating Union-Pool-Room observer. A Fig Leaf Press Release notes that "Flash" and "Rave" magazines were negotiating for the copyright of these insights when the Fig Leaf snapped it up.

Finally, a foreign correspondent reports from Munich on duelling in German Universities.
